

One early spring morning, in fact, it was still winter, for it was on the 22nd day of February, Washington's Birthday, we moved to our new home. A man named Ed Boehl came to town the day before with a big sled, for there was lots of snow on the ground. All the family and the little furniture we had were loaded into the sled and we started for the homestead which none of us, except father, had ever seen. Father walked and drove the cow which he had bought the summer before and, of course, she must be taken to the homestead. It was a long and tiresome trip and Bertha, Arthur and I would get off the sled and walk to get warm and stretch our legs. Ed Boehl, the driver of the team, got angry because he had to stop so often for us to get on again that one time he drove on for a long time, making us walk until we got very tired.

Finally, the trip was ended and we arrived at the new home, which was to be home for many many years. In fact I now think of it as HOME. The stove was brought in, set up in one room, a fire made and in a few moments the weariness of the trip was forgotten in the excitement of inspecting the new house. It sure seemed to all of us to be a big house, after having one room for so long a time. There were two rooms downstairs and the upstairs was in one big room. It would be called a shack today, but then it was a real house. It was made of boards placed on end with narrow boards nailed over the crack, where the main boards came together. After a few years an addition was built along one side, adding a kitchen and another bedroom, and a partition was put across the upstairs room making two rooms there. This served as long as the family lived there.

The reason the family moved to the homestead on Washington's birthday was because that was a holiday then, just as it is now, and father could have that day off from work. He stayed a few days at the homestead and then went back to Sprague to work at the lumber yard. All summer long he would come out every two or three weeks to spend Sunday with the family. Sometimes he could get a ride with some farmer, but many times he would walk the fourteen miles Saturday night and walk back Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Beth Ann Ryker died June 10th 1912 at Aurora, Mo. in the 70th year of her age.
She was born in the state of Virginia Jan. 23rd 1842 and for 52 years lived a consistent christian life. She was quiet and unassuming in her life yet she wielded an influence for good, that will not be fully realized in this world. In trial and affliction she was meek, and sorrows were borne without a murmur, and often the falling tear revealed that sympathy of her heart for others in trouble.
She leaves an aged companion, seven children and an entire community of friends to mourn her death. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor Rev. J. D. Springer of the Cumberland Presbyterian church of Aurora, and her remains placed in the cemetery at that place.

MOURNING WITH HOPE.
"That once loved form, now cold
and dead,
Each mournful thought employs:
And nature weeps, her comfort fled,
And withered all her joys.
Hope looks beyond the bounds of time,
When what we now deplore
Shall rise in full immortal prime,
And bloom to fade no more.
Then cease, fond nature! Cease thy tears,
Religion points on high:
Then everlasting spring appears,
And joy that cannot die.
